Los Angeles
Valley College
Content

- Introduction
- Enrollment Trends
- Demographic Characteristics
- Transfers
- Financial Aid
- Math Sequence
Los Angeles Valley College is a 2-year public college located in the heart of Los Angeles’s San Fernando Valley.

Website: www.lavc.edu
- Enrollment increased from 1949 to 1975 and has fluctuated since then.
- Enrollment decreased in most age groups from 2002 to 2006 and have since been on an upward trend
Enrollment of U.S. citizens has remained relatively stable while the number of enrollment of permanent residents has decreased.
Demographics Characteristics

% Enrolled by Ethnicity: Fall 1972 - 2010

- The number of Whites have decreased dramatically since 1972 and Hispanics have become the largest ethnic student group.
Between 1972 and 2010, females have become the larger proportion of students in the college
The number of English speakers has slightly increased while the number of Spanish speakers has decreased.
The majority of LAVC students were U.S. high school graduates and the number has continued to increase.
Since 1995, an increasing number of students expressed an interest to transfer.
of Transfer Students to a UC or CSU: 1981 - 2010

- Between 1981 to 2010, a majority of students transferred to a CSU
Between 2000 to 2009, the largest ethnic group to transfer to a CSU was Hispanics.
Between 2000 to 2009, the largest ethnic group to transfer to a UC was Whites.
In 2007, most full-time students received financial aid.